Former Naval Person to President personal and [redacted] number 46.

1. I have been earnestly considering your's of March 10.

Although I sent a paraphrase of the operative parts of your proposals to Australia and New Zealand, I have not yet heard from them. It may be that Australia is relying on the discussions you will have with Dr. Evatt who should now be with you.

2. I have also had the proposals examined by our Chiefs of Staff. In principle we see great merits in the simplification resulting from the American control of the Pacific Sphere and the British control of the Indian Sphere, and indeed there is no other way. There are however certain issues, some fundamental, which I must place before you.

3. Nothing must prevent the United States and British Navies from working to a common strategy from Alaska to Capetown. The immense distances and practical facts require them to act in widely separated theaters, but they must operate with a single purpose, an exact timing, and upon closely coordinated plans.

4. We are building up and shall presently have a respectable force which will be based in the Central Indian Ocean. This force already consists of five (5) battleships, two (2) of our latest aircraft carriers, four (4) modern cruisers and several older ones, and thirteen (13) destroyers; all under the command of Admiral Somerville who has done well in a great deal of fighting in the Mediterranean. The remnants of the Dutch Navy are reforming with our assistance and wish to work under our command. In one month the modern aircraft carrier Illustrious, in two months the Valiant and in six months, we hope, the Queen Elizabeth will reinforce our Eastern Fleet. On completion of the refits of Nelson, Rodney and King George Fifth, and should the situation permit, we should consider sending either Nelson or Rodney or possibly both to join the Eastern Fleet.

5. The British Eastern Fleet, composed as it is to a great extent of old ships with short range guns, could only deal with a certain number of the Japanese Fleet. Similarly, a general fleet engagement between the whole Japanese Fleet and the American Pacific Fleet would be a close run thing.

6. Therefore it seems to us that all our Naval Forces must be directed from a single standpoint, and their problems viewed as a whole. This can only be done by the machinery of the combined Chiefs of the Staff Committee, acting directly under you and me in constant contact and agreement. All other arrangements for separate Commands in the Pacific and India Spheres must be effectively subordinated to this supreme Command. I feel sure I am right in reading your proposals in this sense.

7. On this basis we welcome your proposal that an American should be appointed Commander in Chief of all Allies and of all three services in the Pacific Area, with local Commanders in Australia, New Zealand, etc.

8. We also agree that the American Chiefs of the Staff under your direction should decide day to day operational questions affecting the action of this American Commander in Chief in the Pacific Area.

9. We suggest however that Staff Officers from Australia, New Zealand, the Dutch and the Chinese should be available in Washington to serve the American Staffs on operational matters as may be necessary. These officers might also be the technical advisers of the members of the Pacific Council in Washington to which I refer in paragraph eleven (11) below. We have such an arrangement successfully working in London now.

10. So much for the executive conduct of the Pacific war. I now come to the advisory bodies which will have to be consulted on larger issues. Owing to geography they must be duplicated and have the same composition on each side of the Atlantic ocean. There will in fact be two Pacific Councils. The one in Washington, lying as it will in close touch with the American Executive machinery in the Pacific Area, will naturally have more practical and more effective influence upon events than its reproduction in London. It is not possible to draw a line between strategic and political matters, as these are interwoven at the top.

11. As we see it, our Pacific council in London would discuss the whole state of the war against Japan and we would send our opinions from time to time to the similar body in the United States. The executive conduct of the Pacific war against Japan would remain the integral responsibility of the United States acting through the American Chiefs of the Staff and the American Commander in Chief, subject always to the coordination of Naval effort as stated in paragraph three (3) and to the decisions on grand strategy which are the function of the combined Chiefs of the Staff and the Heads of Governments similarly the executive conduct of operations in the Indian Theatre would remain the integral responsibility of the British War Cabinet acting through the Commander in Chief Eastern Fleet and the British Chiefs of the Staff, but the Pacific Council in Washington would send us their opinions when they thought fit.

12. It follows from the above that the United Kingdom should have a representative on the Pacific Council in Washington and that you should have a representative on the Pacific Council in London. Equally we would keep your Representative informed of the course of affairs in the Indian Ocean, which also forms a large part of the Sphere of the London Pacific Council. The Dutch, for instance, are full of ideas for counter attacks on the Japanese captured places, which we will do our best to further before the summer is far advanced.

13. Turning back again to the highest war direction, the present arrangement centres upon the combined Chiefs of the Staff Committee in Washington. The three British representatives in Washington act in accordance with the instructions of the British Chiefs of the Staff Committee in London. Do you wish that American representatives, say Admiral Stark and General Chaney, should sit in on Japanese matters from time to time with our three Chiefs of the Staff here.

withdrawal of their Division from the Middle East, and they do not ask now. At the same time they do not wish to engage themselves never to ask for such return. If, for instance, they were heavily invaded their men abroad would feel deep distress about their homes and families and desire to go home and defend them. However, I do not think they are going to be heavily invaded, and anyhow the matter would be governed by shipping. Therefore let us take it as settled that you send a United States Division to New Zealand and the New Zealand Division remains in the Middle East, at any rate for many months to come. You will probably know from Dr Evatt as soon as I from Mr Curtin what the Australian position is. It would certainly be most unfortunate if the last Australian Division left the Middle East on the eve of the German offensive against the Caucasus.

15. On the supreme and general outlook in the Pacific, we are both agreed on the paramount importance of regaining the initiative against Japan and taking all the captured places their hostages to fortune, as they were formerly ours. We assume that any large scale methods of achieving this would be capable of being discussed by the combined Chiefs of the Staff Committee in Washington and would not be settled out of hand by the American Chiefs of the Staff and their American Commander in Chief. We should naturally consult similarly on large scale methods in our area.

16. There are a few points of detail. In your telegram of March ten you say "India would not be occupied by American troops or planes," but in your earlier message to me, No. 113, in which you set out American air dispositions overseas for 1942, you allocated sixty heavy bombers and eighty pursuit aircraft for the China-India-Burma area. We hope this proposal holds good.

17. Furthermore in detail, we would rather have the American light bombers and fighters which you think sending to England by July sent to the Middle East, where American aircraft of these types are already operating. We are very short of these types in the Middle East and cannot increase what we are sending from here. By sending American types direct you would save the double lift and thus shipping. We have had to bleed the Middle East so much in order to help India, Ceylon and Burma that I am very anxious about our air position in that area.

18. We have agreed on a line dividing the Pacific and Indian spheres, but naturally this line would be elastic, dependent on the movements of the enemy or tasks we might appoint for our forces.

Perhaps this could be taken care of in the final drawing of the line.

Chungking to clarify situation.

2. Stilwell also states Generalissimo has placed him in Independent Command of Chinese troops in Burma which until March fourteen were under me. Have had no other notification. This arrangement appears very unsatisfactory as Stilwell has not necessary staff or local knowledge to take command and his other duties must inevitably interfere. We have built up supply organization for China who have no supply units and also complete liaison organization down to divisions which Stilwell cannot replace."

Would it not be better for Stilwell to be under general directions of Alexander in respect of troops moving actually in British territory where we are responsible for supply and will have constantly increasing forces? Alexander is one of our best Officers and cut his way out of the Rangoon Area with great determination.

Fraser adds that there are some matters of detail on which his Government are not quite clear and which they may wish to take up later. In particular he expresses the hope that the close collaboration between Australia and New Zealand, which has recently been agreed between the Governments concerned, will not be weakened.

Have now had very careful consideration given to your most secret telegram No one one three (113) by my close military advisers.

Your generous offer to lend us American shipping and, in addition, to release the "Queen Mary", "Queen Elizabeth", and "Aquitania" for our use is most welcome and I gladly accept the conditions set out in your para five. Thanks to your help we should now be able to send one more infantry division and one armored division to the East making five in all in the next three months. We would have preferred to keep the monster liners, particularly "Queen Elizabeth," on the long and safer journeys, but the need is so pressing that we must, I think, accept the risks of the Atlantic for them. There is a small point in your para five (C). It would suit us better if you could send a further nine thousand American troops to Iceland (C), even at the expense of Northern Ireland. Perhaps you would consider whether this could be managed.

Personnel shipping. I am delighted to learn that your man lift is so much better than I had been advised. We

I am however, as you know, very anxious about the Levant-Caspian front. Even with United States contributions of air craft for the RAF we ourselves can do little for that theatre. I therefore ventured to ask in Par seventeen (17) of my number forty six (46) whether you would consider sending to the middle east instead of to the United Kingdom, all the light bombers and as many as possible of the fighters listed in your para eight G (one).

Former Naval Person to President. No. five eight (58).

Following is text referred to in my five seven (57). Begins.

We have been considering the President's proposals in the light of your cablegram and several cablegrams from Sir Earle Page and a communication received by me from the President stating that he is in general agreement with our proposals regarding organization and commanding of the Australian area except as to some details concerning relationship to the combined Chiefs of Staff and as to boundaries. Prime Minister in view of the various observations which have been expressed on the composition of the higher machinery its functions location and the procedure to be followed we consider it necessary to summarize our understanding of the position as follows together with any necessary comments.

(1) Division of World War Theatre. This is to be divided into the following three areas - (a) The Atlantic under joint British and American responsibility. (b) The Indian Middle East and Mediterranean areas under British responsibility. (c) The Pacific including China under United States operational responsibility.

The question of the relationship between operational responsibility in the Pacific Area to the inter governmental body is referred to later.

As already stated the President in his message to me considers some detailed adjustments are necessary in boundaries. The significance of the First Sea Lords point on paragraph one two of Dominions Office cablegram three one nine (319) relative to the boundary between the Indian and Pacific areas as it affects the North West and Western Coasts of Australia is not clear in
our suggestion that the proposed line of division should not run to latitude five (5) degrees south to Onslow as proposed but on reaching Longitude one one zero (110) degrees East should run due south along that meridian.

Subject to the foregoing we agree in principle with the President's proposals for the division of the World Theatre into the three areas mentioned.

The Australian Chiefs of Staff consider that on tactical and stategical grounds China should be within the middle area rather than the Pacific because the only lines of communication with China that are or are likely to be open are through the middle area and the bases for aircraft operations in China must be sited within the Indian Command. Also attacks against the Japs in or from China must form part of combined operations on the part of the forces located in the middle area.

(2) Pacific War Council London. It is noted that you suggest that the President should have a representative on the Pacific Council in London and we fully agree with this proposal.

The functions of the Pacific Council in London are described in cablegram No. three one nine (319) as discussion of the whole state of the war against Japan and the communication of its opinions from time to time to the similar body in the United States. This appears satisfactory subject to the later observations on the Pacific Council in Washington.

(3) Pacific War Council Washington. The summary of the President's telegram refers to the setting up in Washington of an advisory body on operational matters consisting of members of Australia, New Zealand, Netherlands East Indies and China under the Chairmanship of an American. We have from the first made it clear that it is imperative that the Commonwealth Government should have a voice in the higher direction of the war in the Pacific Theatre particularly as the whole of our forces are being placed under the operational control of the Supreme Commander.

On twenty first January (1-21st) we asked that the Pacific War Council be established at Washington comprising representatives of the governments of the United Kingdom, USA, Australia, China, Netherlands and New Zealand and proposed that this body should be a council of action for the higher direction of the war in the Pacific. In our proposals of 4th March we stated that the Council should be responsible for the higher policy of the war in the Anzac area and should deal with questions of policy and the provision of forces and supplies. It is observed in paragraph ten of Dominions office cablegram No. three one nine (319) that reference is made to quote the advisory bodies which will have to be consulted on larger issues unquote. We would not be content with an advisory body on operational matters in Washington.

Agreement has already been reached on the appointment of the Supreme Commander in the Anzac area. The directive suggested by us is complete to the higher machinery and the appointment of the Supreme Commander. The Australian Chiefs of Staff consider that the Supreme Commander should be located in Australia because he must be in close touch with the bulk of the forces under his orders especially with those in the forward area in order to judge the capacity and effectiveness of these forces who are undertaking both offensive and defensive operations.

I asked the foreign office to send you a note on the details of your project which I hope may be considered. We do not mind your sending very limited quantities of supplies to French North Africa provided the American observers can penetrate the country freely especially if you could get compensating advantages in securing the control of strategic materials now going to Germany. We value your contacts with Vichy and it is well worth paying a certain price but please. (~~apparently an omission here~~)

Nothing must interfere with operation iron-clad to which we are now committed and no assurances offered by the French about defending their empire like they did Indo-China should be accepted by the United States in such a way as to enable them to complain of a breach of faith.

Our operation has been carefully planned. It comprises two strong and well-trained brigades with

1. In order to cope with future U-Boat hatching, we are emphasising bombing attacks on U-Boat nests, and last night went to Lubeck with two five zero bombers including forty three heavy. Results are said to be the best ever. This is in accordance with your wishes expressed in your No. one two five.

2. As I mentioned in my No. fifty three replying to your No. one two five, Admiralty and Coastal Command, RAF have evolved a plan for a day and night patrol over the Debouches from the Bay of Biscay. Biscay ports are the shortest and best departure points for U-Boats operating in Caribbean and American coasts. German present practice is to proceed submerged by day and make speed on the surface at night. We hope that night attacks and menace by aircraft will hamper their night passage and force increasing exposure by day. Essential therefore to menace both by day and night thus increasing length of voyage and diminishing operational spell on your side.

This advantage would be additional to any kiplings or maimings, some of which might be hoped for each month since there are never less than six U-Boats going or coming through the area to be patrolled.

3. In view of the very heavy sinkings still occurring on your side to which convoy when organized can only be partial remedy, Admiralty are pressing to allocate four and later on six bomber squadrons to this new Biscay patrol. On merits I am most anxious to meet their wish.

4. On the other hand the need to bomb Germany is great. Our new method of finding targets is yielding most remarkable results. However our bombing force has not expanded as we hoped. We have had a heavy disappointment in a structural defect with the wing tips of the Lancasters which requires laying up four squadrons of our latest and best for several months. Just at the time when the weather is improving, when Germans are drawing away flak from their cities for their offensive against Russia, when you are keen about our bombing U-Boat nests, when the oil targets are especially attractive, I find it very hard to take away these extra six squadrons from bomber command in which Harris is doing so well.

5. Arnold had arranged at your orders to send the first installment of United States Bomber Groups to England arriving in July. Can you not manage to expedite TMMS? Never was there so much good work to be done and so few to do it. We must not let our summer air attack on Germany decline into a second rate affair. Everything is ready for your people here and there are targets of all kinds, from easy to hard, to work up on in contact with the enemy. Even a hundred American heavy bombers working from this country before the end of May would lift our air offensive to the proper scale and enable me to spare the six squadrons now for the Biscay patrols.

Para 1. Air attack on Malta is very heavy. There are now in Sicily about four hundred German and two hundred Italian fighters and bombers. Malta can only now muster twenty or thirty serviceable fighters. We keep feeding Malta with Spitfires in packets of sixteen loosed from Eagle carrier from about six hundred miles west of Malta.

This has worked a good many times quite well but Eagle is now laid up for a month by defects in her steering gear. There are no Spitfires in Egypt. Argus is too small and too slow and moreover she has to provide the fighter cover for the Carrier launching the Spitfires and for the escorting force. We would use Victorious but unfortunately her lifts are too small for Spitfires. Therefore there will be a whole month without any Spitfires reinforcements.

Para 2. It seems likely from extraordinary enemy concentration on Malta that they hope to exterminate our Air Defense in time to reinforce either Libya or their Russian offensive. This would mean that Malta would be at the best powerless to interfere with reinforcements of armour to Rommel, and our chances of resuming offensive against him at an early date ruined.

Para 3. Would you be willing to allow your Carrier Wasp to do one of these trips provided details are satisfactorily agreed between the Naval Staffs.

With her broad lifts, capacity and length, we estimate that Wasp could take fifty or more Spitfires. Unless it were necessary for her to fuel Wasp could proceed through the straits at night without calling at Gibraltar until on the return journey as the Spitfires would be embarked in the Clyde.

Para 4. Thus instead of not being able to give Malta any further Spitfires during April a powerful Spitfire force could be flown into Malta at a stroke and give us a chance of inflicting a very severe and possibly decisive check on enemy. Operation might take place during third week of April.

Delighted by your letter of March eighteen just received. I am so grateful for all your thoughts about my affairs, and personal kindness. Our position here has always been quite solid but naturally with nothing but disaster to show for ones work people were restive in Parliament and the Press. I find it very difficult to get over Singapore but I hope we shall redeem it ere long.

Dickies show at St Nazaire, though small in scale, was very bracing. For your personal and Secret eye. I made him Vice Admiral, Lieutenant General and Air Marshal some few weeks ago, and have put him on the Chiefs of Staff Committee as Chief of Combined Operations. He is an equal member attending whenever either his own affairs or the General Conduct of the war are under consideration.

He will be in the centre of what you mention on the second page of your letter, Paragraph three. I am looking forward to receiving your plan. We are working very hard here, not only at plans but at preparations.

Your last paragraph on page one. Speaking as one amateur to another, my feeling is that the wisest stroke for Japan would be to press on through Burma northwards into China and try to make a job of that. They may disturb India, but I doubt its serious invasion. We are sending forty to fifty thousand men each month to the East. As they round the Cape we can divert them to Suez, Basra, Bombay, Ceylon or Australia. I have told Curtin that if he is seriously invaded, by which I mean six or eight enemy divisions, we will come to his aid. But of course this could only be at the expense of the most urgent needs in the other Theatres. I hope you will continue to give Australia all possible reinforcement and thus enable me to defend Egypt, the Levant and India successfully. It will be a hard task.

We cannot send any more submarines from the Mediterranean to the Indian Ocean and dispose only of two British and four Dutch. We are much stronger now at Ceylon and are fairly equipped with Garrisons, Hurricanes, some Torpedo planes and RDF, together with pretty stiff flak. Admiral Somervilles fleet is growing to respectable proportions, and it may be an opportunity of fighting an action will occur. Meanwhile operation Ironclad is going ahead. This also concerns Dickie a good deal. Altogether I hope we shall be better off in the Indian Ocean in a little while, and that the Japanese will have missed their opportunity there.

It seems important to make the Japanese anxious for their numerous conquests and prevent them scraping together troops for further large excursions. I should be very glad to know how your plans for Californian Commandos are progressing. I see some hints that Donovan is working at them.

All now depends upon the vast Russo German struggle. It looks as if the heavy German offensive may not break until after the middle of May or even the beginning of June. We are doing all we can to help and also to take the weight off. We shall have to fight every convoy through to Murmansk. Stalin is pleased with our deliveries. They are due to go up fifty percent after June and it will be very difficult to do this in view of the new war and also of shipping. Only the weather is holding us back from continuous heavy bombing attack on Germany. Our new methods are most successful. Essen, Cologne and above all Lubeck were all on the Coventry Scale. I am sure it is most important to keep this up all through the summer, blasting Hitler from behind while he is grappling with the Bear. Everything that you can send to weight our attack will be of the utmost value. At Malta also we are containing, with much hard fighting nearly six hundred German and Italian planes. I am wondering whether these will move to the South Russian front in the near future. There are many rumors of an air borne attack on Malta, possibly this month.

Having heard from Stalin that he was expecting the Germans would use gas on him, I have assured him that we shall treat any such outrage as if directed upon us, and will retaliate without limit. This we are in a good position to do. I propose at his desire to announce this towards the end of the present month and we are using the interval to work up our own precautions. Please let all the above be absolutely between ourselves.

According to our information 5 and possibly 6 Japanese Battleships, probably including 2 of 16 inch Guns, and certainly 5 Aircraft Carriers, are operating in the Indian Ocean. We cannot of course make head against this Force, especially if it is concentrated. You know the composition of our Fleet. The 4 Roger class Battleships were good enough, in combination with the others, to meet the 3 Kongos, which was all we believed were over on our side. They cannot of course cope with modernized Japanese Ships. Even after the heavy losses inflicted on the enemy's Aircraft in their abortive attack on Colombo, we cannot feel sure that our 2 Carriers would beat the 4 Japanese Carriers concentrated South of Ceylon. The situation is therefore one of grave anxiety.

It is not yet certain whether the enemy is making a mere demonstration in the Indian Ocean or whether these movements are the prelude to an invasion in force of Ceylon. In existing circumstances our Naval Forces are not strong enough to oppose this.

As you must now be decidedly superior to the enemy Forces in the Pacific, the situation would seem to offer an immediate opportunity to the United States Pacific Fleet which might be of such a nature as to compel Japanese Naval Forces in the Indian Ocean to return to the Pacific, thus relinquishing or leaving unsupported any invasion enterprise which they have in mind or to which they are committed. I cannot too urgently impress the importance of this upon you.

Looking forward to receiving Harry.

Have just received following from Cripps: I have tonight received long letter from Congress President stating that Congress is unable to accept proposals. Rejection on widest grounds and not solely on defense issue although it indicates that while Congress would agree that Commander-in-Chief should have freedom to control conduct of the war and connected activities as Commander-in-Chief and war member proposed formula left functions of defense member unduly restricted. Main ground of rejection is however that in the view of Congress there should be immediately a National Government and that without Constitutional changes there should be "definite assurances in conventions which would indicate that new government would function as a Free Government and members of which would act as members of a cabinet in a Constitutional Government". Letter also states that picture of proposed immediate arrangements is not essentially different from old ones "the whole object which we have in view that is to create a new psychological approach to the people to make them feel that their own national freedom had come, that they were defending their new won freedom, would be completely frustrated when they saw this old picture again which is such that Congress cannot fit into it."

There is clearly no hope of agreement and I shall start home on Sunday.

He is broadcasting at 2030 I. S. T today Saturday. I feel absolutely satisfied we have done our utmost and have sent Cripps the following telegram:

You have done everything in human power and your tenacity, perseverance and resourcefulness have proved how great was the British desire to reach a settlement. You must not feel unduly discouraged or disappointed by the results. The effect throughout Britain and in The United States has been wholly beneficial. The fact that the break comes on the broadest issues and not on tangled formulas about defense is a great advantage. I am very glad you are coming home at once, where a Telegram from Mr Harry Hopkins to the President.

Shipping losses in Western North Atlantic during period January 12th to April 12th of United Nations tonnage are 1, 200,000 gross tons. Of this more than half are tankers. During the past week we have lost in the same area 150,000 tons, of which 106,000 tons were tankers. It seems to me that the ships we are losing are in the main far more important than the cargoes. We are going to need all of these ships desperately in the next few months.

British are agreeable to reducing stocks to make sure that ships are not sunk, and it seems to me that we should be able to do the same thing. In other words, unless the cargoes are absolutely essential the ships should not be permitted to sail until our new scheme comes into operation next month. I doubt very much that anything short of convoy is going to do this job, and risking further ships without reasonably sure protection is the wrong policy. I should feel somewhat differently about this if every cargo was absolutely essential to the war effort during the next few weeks, but if the British can give up cargoes temporarily I am sure we can.

I believe the bad effect on the crew, not only of ships in this area but other areas as well, cannot be over estimated. It is going to be very difficult to keep these men at work if the sinkings continue, particularly when they have no escort or other ships in company. Statement by Knox that submarine menace will be in hand by May 1st impresses me as being a very unwise statement at this time. I cannot impress upon you too strongly the concern which all here have in regard to this matter. This is only natural because this island is so dependent on imports and they realize full well the significance of these sinkings to the future of the war.

I need not dwell on the importance of every possible ship to us during the coming months. I had planned to postpone a discussion of this until I could see you, but the matter seems to me to be of such urgency that I decided to take it by cable.

From: London,
To: Milid,

No. 2398, April 14th, 1942,

British Chiefs of Staff have just submitted comments on our proposal. From Marshall to McNarney urgent. In substance, there is complete agreement as to 1943 and as to speed up of preparations of boats, assembly of US troops and planes, initiating air offensive this summer and increase in frequency and size of raids. "If Russia is being defeated we may be compelled to make supreme effort to draw off German forces from the Eastern Front. This situation may arise at any time after June. It therefore follows that the sooner American air forces, and particularly American bombers, arrive in this country the greater will be our chance of successful action. The subsequent arrival of American land forces would enable us to reinforce the expeditionary forces on the Continent, if we succeed in establishing a bridgehead".

Following the general presentation is the following as part two of the paper: Measures which must be taken concurrently with our preparation to go on the Continent.

We wish to point out that the action against Germany as outlined in the previous paragraphs may be entirely vitiated unless we take the necessary steps to hold Japan in the meantime.

The extent and rapidity of the Japanese advance has placed us in a perilous position in India, the Indian Ocean and Ceylon. But despite the enormous British interests involved, we should not on the long view feel so concerned at the Japanese advance, were it not for the results it might have on our ability to defeat Germany. We cannot afford that Japan should obtain control of the waters in the Western part of the Indian Ocean as it would have the following results:

(A) We should be unable to sustain our forces in the Middle East. Germany would then be able to get access to the oil of Iraq and Iran and to the raw materials of the East, and so be greatly fortified for a very long struggle. (B) We should lose our oil supplies from Abadan. This would be a major disaster since the oil which we and Australia obtain from the Persian and Iraq Oil Fields cannot be replaced from elsewhere owing to shortage of tankers. (C) The Southern supply route to Russia would be cut. This route is likely to be of increasing importance as enemy attacks on the Northern route increase. We have plenty of evidence that the Germans have every intention of bringing a heavy scale of surface, U boat and air attack against the Northern route this summer. (D) Turkey would unquestionably fall an easy prey to the Axis enabling enemy naval forces to enter the Black Sea and so turn the Russian position in the Caucasus. This might lead directly and quickly to the downfall of our Russian ally.

We do not possess enough naval forces, even leaving the bare minimum for our vital commitments in home waters to meet the Japanese forces already operating in the Indian Ocean; not to mention those which may be added to them. We are also very short of aircraft in this theatre.

Accordingly we most urgently require American naval assistance unless the action by the United States Pacific Fleet can be such as to ensure that the Japanese cannot operate strong forces in the Indian Ocean; the only alternative is the USA to send us capital ship and aircraft carrier reinforcements, together with their complement of cruisers and destroyers, so that our Eastern Fleet may be reinforced to such an extent that the Japanese will not dare challenge it in these waters.

Similarly we urgently require American Air Forces, particularly air striking forces, in the Indian theatre, in order that we may ensure the control of sea communications in the waters around Ceylon and on the East coast of India. These are required both to secure our naval base at Ceylon and to prevent the enemy acquiring positions in Southern India from which they could threaten this base. Aircraft

From Amembassy London England
To: Milid G-2

No. 2400, April 14, 1942.

The following is part 1 and annex of "Chiefs of Staff Committee Comments on General Marshall's Memorandum" mentioned in my number 2398. From Marshall to McNarney urgent.

A 1. We have read with great interest and are in general agreement with your outline plan for operations in Western Europe. It fits in with the way we had been thinking and the opportunity afforded by your visit for examination of the plan by your and our staffs, in close and frank consultation has, we think, been invaluable. We should like this close consultation to continue in London.

We agree with the Paramount importance of keeping Russia in the field, and that Western Europe is the most suitable theatre for a major offensive against Germany by the combined forces of the United States of America and Great Britain. There is, therefore, identity of outlook between us both on the short and long term view.

As regards the long term view, we entirely agree that plans should be prepared for major operations on the continent by American and British forces in 1943 on the lines proposed in your paper. It is important that no time should be lost in concerting the necessary plans, and your paper provides a most valuable basis for their preparation. We also agree that, subject to the necessary measures being taken to hold Japan (see paragraphs 13th to 15th below), everything should be concentrated on the main object, is the defeat of Germany.

As regards the short term view, we feel that we may have an opportunity, indeed that we may be compelled (for the reasons given in paragraph 5) to take some action on the continent this year (1942). Since the weather breaks before the end of September, any such operation must take place sufficiently early to ensure the capture of a port on the continent by the 3rd week in September at latest. In other words, the operation must be launched in August at latest. We recognize that substantial American land forces cannot reach the United Kingdom in time to take part in operations on the continent until September, and therefore that the bulk of any land forces which are engaged in any operation before that date will have to be British. Nevertheless, any American forces, particularly air forces, which can arrive in time to cooperate would be of the greatest value, and might make the difference between success and failure. The reasons are as follows:

Our action in 1942 will be governed by the situation in Russia. This may develop in any of the 3 following ways:
(A) Russia is being defeated; (B) Russia is holding Germany;
(C) Russia is winning. These alternatives are discussed seriatim in the paragraphs that follow.

6. If Russia is being defeated, we may be compelled to make a supreme effort to draw off German Forces from the Eastern Front. This situation might arise any time after June. It therefore follows that the sooner American Air Forces, and particularly heavy bombers, arrive in this country the greater will be our chance of successful action. The subsequent arrival of American land forces would enable us to reinforce the expeditionary force on the continent, if we had succeeded in establishing a Bridgehead. But even if the Russians were to collapse before the American forces had crossed over, they would be invaluable to strengthen the defenses of this country against the invasion which we believe would inevitably follow.

If Russia is holding Germany, it is difficult to see in advance precisely what we should do. On the 1 hand successful action by us on the continent might turn the scale in favour of Russia and expedite ultimate victory. On the other hand, there might be much to be said for delaying such action until 1943. In the first place, the German Army and people would by then be much weaker as a result of enduring another winter; 2ndly the danger of a premature and possibly abortive uprising by the Patriot Armies would be avoided. Since, however, we must be prepared to make action in 1942, the early arrival of American forces is just as necessary as in the previous case.

If Russia is winning, much the same arguments apply as in the last case, with this qualification that if at any time it became clear that Germany was on the point of collapse, we should not hesitate to get on the continent at once. American participation in such an enterprise, whenever it might occur, would clearly be of the greatest value.

Thus, in all 3 cases, American Forces would be of the greatest value, although at this stage it is not possible to foresee the precise circumstance or the precise manner in which they would be employed.

If you agree with our General conception, we should be glad of early information as to the character and extent of the contribution which you could make available before September, and the earliest dates by which the various air and land contingents could arrive. The most important requirements for this country are transport aircraft and crews and parachute battalions, while equally important is an additional supply of American fighters for the middle East to enable us to assemble the necessary reserve of British fighters in the United Kingdom.

We cordially agree with your view that considerable training in combined operations is necessary before any forces are launched upon operations on the continent. This can best be done in this country.

As an annex to this Parox, we have set out the steps which we have in hand to prepare ourselves for the various contingencies which may arise in the near future.

Annex: Summary of action already being taken or contemplated.

In the first place, we have put in hand the restoration of our South Coast Ports which had fallen into disuse, and without which no operations on any considerable scale can be launched.

As a further step, in addition to night air attacks which we are delivering at the heart of Germany, we intend to carry out heavy day light raids on the coasts of France and Inland on the continent with views forcing the Germans to give battle and so subject their fighter forces to severe wastage. By doing this, we hope to give positive assistance to the Russians on the Eastern Front by drawing off German reserve Sixcrauy to the West.

We also intend to intensify both the scope and frequency of our seaborne and airborne raids on the enemy's coast line.

We have in addition studied very carefully all operation for seizing a Bridgehead on the coast of France.

I must revert to the grave situation in the Indian Ocean mentioned in my number 65, arrising from the fact that the Japanese have felt able to detach nearly a third of their battle fleet and half their carriers, which force we are unable to match for several months. The consequences of this may easily be: (A) The loss of Ceylon. (B) Invasion of Eastern India with incalculable internal consequences to our whole war plan and including the loss of Calcutta and of all contact with the Chinese through Burma. But this is only the beginning. Until we are able to fight a fleet action there is no reason why the Japanese should not become the dominating factor in the Western Indian Ocean. This would result in the collapse of our whole position in the Middle East, not only because of the interruption to our convoys to the Middle East and India, but also because of the interruptions to the oil supplies from Supplies to Russia via the Persian Gulf would also be cut. With so much of the weight of Japan thrown upon us we have more than we can bear.

We had hoped that by the end of April the American Pacific Fleet would be strong enough to reoccupy Pearl Harbor and offer some menace to the Japanese which they would have to consider seriously. At present there seems to be no adequate restraint upon Japanese movements to the West. We are not sure ^{however} moreover whether owing to the great distances even the reoccupation of Pearl Harbor in force by the United States Battle Fleet would necessarily exercise compulsive pressure upon the Japanese High Naval Command. We are deeply conscious of the difficulties of your problem in the Pacific Area.

If you do not feel able to take speedy action which will force Japan to concentrate in the Pacific, the only way out of the immense perils which confront us would

I hope you will send North Carolina over to join Washington at Scapa. This will enable us to send Renown immediately and Duke of York as soon as possible afterwards to join our Eastern Fleet in the Indian Ocean. This force should prove a strong deterrent to Japanese attacks upon our convoy route to Egypt and India. There is no question of our seeking battle against superior forces, but we do not want to be sought out and found at a disadvantage.
Admiralty information concurs with yours that there are indications that Japanese carriers have gone eastwards to replenish with aircraft after their severe losses at Colombo and Trimcomalee. All the more is there reason to use this lull to get into a sounder position.

As regards air reinforcements for Burma India and Ceylon Portal has drafted the note in my immediately following telegram after full discussion with Marshall

I also have had a long painful message from the Generalissimo but I do not know what can be done beyond the measures now set on foot including especially the replenishment of A V G Alexander has done very well but his force is now little more than ten thousand effectives and if the Japanese continue to land new divisions it is only a question of time before they enter China from the South.

this force with a full reserve for immediate purposes I have agreed to transfer 34 heavy and medium bomber air-

I should be only too willing to release Kittyhawk aircraft for Ranger for despatch in Ranger were it not that this would mean taking grave risks in Middle East and possibly compromising the coming offensive. Egypt is now more than ever dependent on this type because of large despatches of Hurricane fighters to India. I hope this will not prevent the use of Ranger as the President suggests. In case sufficient American aircraft for A V G are not available perhaps it would be possible to use any vacant space to hasten shipment of Kittyhawk destined for Middle East but at present waiting for ships.

From former naval person to the President number 73 the Ambassador and the heads of our missions in Washington tell me that it may be necessary to create some combined bodies for dealing with supplies in addition to those we set up at Christmass. One example is food while our long range programs of war production are also not yet covered by the existing machinery.

But if to the existing raw materials and shipping combined boards we add 2 or 3 additional bodies, it appears that some means of pulling together all the inter allied groups (other than the Chiefs of Staff) in order to get overall direction may be needed. I find that Harry Hopkins and our representatives are agreed about the need for a central focus of this kind.

We must in any case make some fresh appointments in connection with our various supply organizations in Washington. If, on your hearing Harry Hopkins report of his talks with us, you agree about the desirability of setting up a single controlling body over the combined boards, I would at once appoint a representative with the

In your Number 131 of April 3rd you said that you felt that it would be unwise to do anything which would give the impression that Ironclad was a joint Anglo American enterprise. In the situation which then existed I agreed with you: But now that Laval has come into power at Vichy and you have withdrawn Leahy, are not things different?

In these changed circumstances, would you be prepared to reconsider your previous decision, and allow us to drop leaflets both at Ironclad and in France which would give the impression that America was associated with the expedition, and that, conjointly with Great Britain, she guaranteed the return of Ironclad to France after the war?

In my immediately following telegram is a note drafted by me on 22nd for Defense Committee and accepted by them. It should explain to you how we are planning to act. I beg that this may be for you and Admiral King alone.

I am deeply anxious about Malta under the unceasing bombardment of 450 1st line German aircraft. If the island fortress is to hold out till the June convoy, which is the earliest possible, it must have a continued flow of Spitfires. The last flying off from Wasp was most successful, although unhappily the enemy's attack broke up many after they had landed. We are using Eagle to send in 15 or so at a time. I shall be grateful if you will allow Wasp to do a 2nd trip. We will of course escort with Renown as before. I do not think enemy have the slightest idea Wasp has been in and out of the Mediterranean. Without this aid I fear Malta will be pounded to bits. Meanwhile its defense is wearing out the enemy's air force and effectively aiding Russia.

Para 3 will follow later.

No. XXXC 65 April 24, 1942

Former Naval person to President personal and

1. No satisfactory solution of the Malta problem is available in May. The island must therefore hold out till the June dark period. This should be possible if rigorous severity of rationing is imposed from now and the supply of Spitfires by Wasp and Eagle is maintained.

2. We must not be deterred from Ironclad, for which such long preparations have been made, by the changes in the French government. However, it would be wise to have both Renown and Duke of York handy either at Gibraltar or in home waters till we see the reactions upon Vichy France.

3. The month gained by Malta holding out till the Middle of June and the dropping of the idea of a convoy from the west (A) eases the strain upon the Commander in Chief, Home Fleet by narrowing the gap between Rodney and Nelson being ready for action and any departure of Duke of York: (B) enables the May convoy to Russia to be run thus relieving a most dangerous congestion and avoiding failing Stalin at the most critical juncture.

4. All the above is very convenient in the west but is gained at the expense of the Command of the Indian Ocean. However, we were not going to get that anyhow until late in June. It is suggested therefore that the assembly of the Eastern Fleet should be fixed for 30th June, by which date, barring accidents, Duke of York, Renown, Warspite, Valiant, and 3 armored aircraft carriers and the 4 Rogers' should all be present. Here would be a fleet which, if not strong enough to fight the Japanese Navy, would at any rate be capable of dealing with a very heavy detachment. We may have to pay forfeits in the Indian Ocean in consequence of enemy action, but we are running these risks now and would have to anyhow for 5 weeks to come. We shall have to go on running the risks for another 4.

5. What should Admiral Somerville do in the meanwhile? First he is to cover Ironclad for which he is not ill equipped with the 3 carriers, Warspite and the 4 Rogers. This is all provided for in his orders and he is already on the way via Colombo.

6. After Ironclad is over, it is hoped about the 10th May, he should work his way North to fuel at Aden in the early days of June. By this time we shall know what has happened to General Auchinleck's offensive. If he has got Martuba or Benghazi, the chances of a Malta convoy getting through from the East will be greatly improved. We shall also know how much of the German Air Force has been drawn away from the Mediterranean to the South Russian front, the actual moves that have taken place or are in progress. We can also judge the situation in the Indian Ocean as it then appears, observing that we cannot fight a fleet action anyhow except against a minor detachment. The decision can then be taken whether or not to escort the convoy in strength from the East through the Mediterranean or sail southwards again to meet the Duke of York and Renown and pick up Valiant for the eastern fleet assembly on June 30th.

7. Should the decision be to make a dash into the Mediterranean and see the convoy through in style, Admiral Somerville should proceed with all 3 aircraft carriers and Warspite with auxiliaries through the canal where the convoy should be assembled. This convoy must be worthy of the effort and risk required to put it through. At least 7 supply ships can now be loaded at Alexandria. If all goes well, there will still be time for Admiral Somerville to come back through the canal and make the general fleet rendezvous on the 30th June at Colombo or wherever is convenient.

Eden has been dealing with this for me in consultation with first Sea Lord and Leathers. Following is the position. Voyage of each of these convoys now entails major fleet operation. With the best will in the world cycle of convoys cannot be more than 3 in 2 months. One convoy (P.Q. 15), limited to 25 merchant ships, has just sailed. In view of what you tell me we are ready to consider, in the light of the experience gained in this convoy, whether the number of merchant ships in future convoys can be increased to as many as 35. Convoy should reach North Russian ports in about 10 days time. Meanwhile we are arranging for 35 merchant ships to be loaded for the next convoy (P.Q. 16), due to leave Iceland (C) on the 17th May. But 35 is the absolute maximum number which it is safe to risk without further experience of the scale of enemy attack.

It is not clear from your telegram whether you have seen the contents of Leathers letter to Harriman of 25th April which were telegraphed to Hopkins the same day. This explains that even if size of the convoys is limited to 25 merchant ships each there will be 75 ships carrying supplies to Russia every 2 months, of which 24 are sufficient to lift protocol supplies from the United Kingdom, leaving 51, including tankers, available to carry supplies from the USA in each 2-monthly period. We estimate that, apart from food, the protocol calls for about 150,000 short tons per month from the USA. Deducting 10,000 tons from this for deliveries via the Persian Gulf, and proceeding on the assumption that each ship will carry on the average 6,000 short tons, not more than 24 ships per month (I E 48 in the 2 months) would be required to lift your quotas, leaving a margin of 2 or 3 for tankers and food supplies.

But the assumption that each ship can carry on the average 6,000 short tons presupposes that the cargo is stowed in such a way as to ensure that the highest priority goods are loaded into a much smaller number of ships than is now employed. Hitherto ships have been carrying about half this tonnage. This is a waste we can neither afford. The only possible course to adopt in order to work off the present accumulation at Iceland (C) is therefore to bring to the United Kingdom most of the 16 ships now waiting there, and also some of the 50 American and Russian ships which are on their way across the Atlantic. These would be discharged and restowed. In our view this is the only possible course if the most important cargo is to reach Russia in the largest possible volume at an early date.

I hope this may meet your views. We are at out utmost strain for convoys escorts.

Admiral King has handed to me the Prime Minister's recent dispatch to you, with certain passages marked for my comment or suggested answers, which are to serve as a basis for your reply to Mr. Churchill. In this connection I am at a loss to explain the reference to General Giraud. With respect to other marked portions of the message I suggest a reply as follows:

No. 144
"It seems probable to me that the request made upon you by Mr. Curtin for two divisions and for additional marine assistance was made upon his own responsibility although ~~probably~~ ^{possibly} based upon conversations with General MacArthur. The directive under which General MacArthur holds his command provides that the United States Chiefs of Staff will constitute the executive agency through which orders are to be passed to him, and we had assumed that any request of his for reinforcement would be directed here. However, the command set-up in Australia is complex and understandings in certain details are reached only as they arise, and it is therefore possible that both Mr. Curtin and General MacArthur felt it proper to make request for British assistance directly upon the British Government.

"We have previously replied to a message from General MacArthur informing him that additional airplane carriers are not now available for assignment to the Southwest Pacific. Only today we received another request for a number of ships desired for coastwise and local transportation in Australia, but we had no knowledge of any special need for additional trans-Pacific shipping, nor for the two British Divisions now at sea. I agree with you these should go to India and I hope Mr. Curtin's request is not a mere preliminary to an insistence upon the return home of the 9th Australian Division. As you know, in accepting, some time ago, your suggestion that we send an additional division to the Australians, we did so in the hope that they would then feel able to leave one of their own in the Middle East.

I have had no official information concerning Giraud's alleged escape. My only information has come from the press.

"We will instruct General MacArthur, immediately, that his future requests for reinforcements, except for routine supply which should follow accustomed channels, will be processed to the U.S. Chiefs of Staff. Where your forces are concerned, we will then communicate with the British Chiefs of Staff. With this arrangement definitely prescribed and understood, you will know that any request reaching you from Mr. Curtin is made upon his own responsibility."

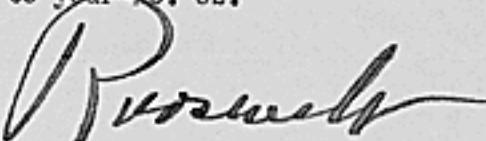

A message to General MacArthur, agreeable to the above, is going out immediately.

Chief of Staff.

If you think it advisable I will offer the hope to Mr. Curtin that he will not ask the return of any of his Troops from the Near East.

This despatch is in reference to your No. 82.

Thank you for your telegram number 142 which is of great help to us. We have drafted terms which we propose that the force Commander should, if he can, put to the Governor at the earliest possible moment. After stating that the territory cannot be allowed to suffer the fate of Indo China and that it should be made available to those forces which are fighting to restore freedom of the world and secure the liberation of France and French Territory, the Governor is summoned to surrender the territory unconditionally and is given the following assurances. The territory will remain French. Those who elect to return to France will be repatriated as opportunity offers. The salaries and pensions of all officials who elect to cooperate will be provided for. Trade with the United Nations will be restored and the territory will receive all the economic benefits accorded to those French Territories which have already joined the United Nations.

In view of your telegram, I am including a statement that the operation has the full approval of The Government of The United States, unless I hear from you that you see objection to this.

In addition to your communication to the French Ambassador AA Washington I would urge that it is essential that the same message should also be delivered to Petain or Laval at the earliest possible moment in order that they may know what is afoot before the news reaches Vichy from Ironclad. I would suggest that you telegraph the text of your communication EN Clair to Mr. Tuck as soon as you hear from us that the operation has been launched. This will be done by code word through Field Marshal Dill, and if all goes well the news should reach you between 8:00 PM and 11:00 PM Eastern Standard time on Monday, 4th May.

REPLY TO YOUR 87.

IT NOW APPEARS THAT DELIVERY OF CARRIER FIGHTERS WILL FAIL TO MEET OUR MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS IN 1942 SO THAT THE LOANING OF THE MARTLETS TO YOU WOULD MERELY MEAN THAT OUR OWN CARRIERS WERE TO THE SAME DEGREE NOT EQUIPPED. I AM PUTTING EVERY PRESSURE ON DELIVERY OF CARRIER FIGHTERS AND HOPE OUR PRODUCTION RATE CAN BE INCREASED.

PLANS ARE BEING PUSHED TO TRAIN, EQUIP AND MOVE AIR TRANSPORT UNITS TO THE U.K. AS RAPIDLY AS POSSIBLE. THE PRESENT SCHEDULE AND THE PROBABILITY IS: FOR JUNE TWO GROUPS OF 52 PLANES EACH; FOR JULY TWO ADDITIONAL GROUPS, MAKING A TOTAL OF 208 TRANSPORT PLANES. THIS IS AN ADVANCE OF ONE MONTH ON THE ORIGINAL SCHEDULE.
IT IS PLANNED TO AUGMENT THIS AIR TRANSPORT FORCE BY FOUR ADDITIONAL GROUPS BY NOVEMBER, 1942, PROVIDING A GRAND TOTAL OF 416 PLANES.
TRANSPORT GROUPS ON REACHING ENGLAND WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO ASSIST THE BRITISH FORCES BOTH IN OPERATIONS AND TRAINING.

THE IMPORTANCE OF AIRBORNE TROOPS IN OPERATIONS IS FULLY APPRECIATED AND WE ARE DOING EVERYTHING POSSIBLE TO ACCELERATE THE RATE AT WHICH AIR TRANSPORT CAN BE MADE AVAILABLE IN ENGLAND.

With very great respect what you suggest is beyond our power to fulfil. Admiral King has expressed opinion that our transatlantic escorts are already too thin. Reduction proposed would dislocate convoy system for 8 weeks during which if enemy switched from your east coast to mid ocean disastrous consequences might follow to our main life line.

moreover difficulty of Russian convoys cannot be solved merely by anti submarine craft. Enemy heavy ships and destroyers may at any time strike. Even on this present P convoy we have been attacked by hostile destroyers which were beaten off with damage to one of ours. Edinburgh, one of our best 6 inch cruisers has been badly damaged by U-boats and is being towed to Murmansk where Trinidad, damaged last convoy, is still pinned. Just now I have received news that King George V has collided with our

Difficulty of Russian convoy escorts is therefore at least as much surface ships of high fighting quality as of anti submarine craft. We have made desperate attacks on Tirpitz in Trondheim but alas although near the target have not achieved any damage.

I beg you not to press us beyond our judgment

6 ships from Iceland have already arrived at the limit of what we can handle. Pound is cabling separately

I HAVE BEEN GIVING A GREAT DEAL OF THOUGHT TO THE ALLOCATION OF COMBAT AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURED HERE. IT IS MY CLEAR CONVICTION THAT EXCEPT FOR A REASONABLE NUMBER IN THE BRITISH ISLES ALL RESERVE PLANES SHOULD BE REMOVED FROM A RESERVE STATUS WHICH IS IN FACT AN INACTIVE STATUS IN ORDER TO STRENGTHEN MAXIMUM AND CONTINUOUS AIR IMPACT ON THE ENEMY.

I AM SURE YOU WILL UNDERSTAND OUR GREAT DESIRE TO MAKE THE MOST EFFECTIVE CONTRIBUTION TO OUR COMBINED WAR EFFORT IN EVERY APPROPRIATE THEATER TO THE LIMIT OF OUR GROWING CAPACITY. Para 1. The evidence at present available shows that Japanese carriers are equipped with striking forces of fighter dive bombers in large numbers. Hitherto we have assessed our fighter strength as that necessary to meet the torpedo carrier or large dive bomber of which a considerably lesser number can be operated by the enemy. It is necessary to increase our own fighter aircraft strength in Eastern fleet carriers.

Para 2. Your very generous help in the delivery of fighter aircraft will permit us to operate a large increase for a time but owing to our quota ending this September and not restarting until 1943 we cannot continue to operate the fighter strength desired. A loan of 200 Martlets (which are the ideal aircraft for the purpose) has been asked for through the MAB repeat MAB to be delivered between now and December 1942. I should be very grateful for your help in this matter which I regard as most important and urgent.

Para 3. There is another urgent matter to which I would like to draw your attention, namely the early supply of transport aircraft for our airborne forces. As you know we hope to use our airborne forces in operations this summer but our ability to do so depends largely on the supply of transports from the United States. Without this help, our airborne forces can only be lifted at the cost of the bombing offensive against Germany.

Para 4. Under Portals agreement with Arnold, we have already been promised a considerable number of transports but the most useful types will arrive too late for our purpose. Our immediate need, therefore, is to receive the largest possible number of American transports within the next few weeks at the expense, if necessary, of supplies later in the year. I therefore ask whether you could let us have 200 American transports as early in June as possible.

Para 5. In this connection I would like also to suggest that American airborne units should be sent at the same time to train and operate alongside our own

We understand and respect the generous impulse which inspires the United States air force to engage American lives in the conflict at the earliest moment. God knows we have no right to claim undue priority in the ranks of honour. Let us each do our utmost. So may it be to the end.

The sole objective must be the maximum air impact on the enemy, month by month. We have both of us to find together the highest fulfilment of this irrespective of whether British or United States pilots man the aircraft.

For this purpose a common expansion plan is necessary, and a ruthless scrutiny of reserves, discrepancies or anything clogging the pipelines. Please send Arnold and Towers at the earliest possible moment. We shall lay everything before them. Portal will return with them and if necessary I will come myself.

I ought to tell you however that as we understand it, General Arnolds proposals for revision of the allocations of American aircraft to the Royal Air force mean the loss of nearly 5000 aeroplanes to us this year. The effect would be to reduce by over 100 squadrons (nearly 2000 first line aeroplanes) the force which we had planned to have in action by the spring of 1943. Dependent on your expected deliveries we have already taken into service and are now training pilots, crews and mechanics for this plan, and ancillary equipment of all kinds will be available for it. Indeed, we have in active theatres of War awaiting aeroplanes at this moment about 30 squadrons, some of them veteran units which have lost their equipment in action.

I hope Mr President you will not take any final decision without considering how these hundred squadrons are to be replaced by American units on the various battle fronts by the dates expected. Without your assurance on these points the whole structure of our plans would collapse, and an entirely new view of the War

Dear Harry:

Herewith

- (1) marked-up copy of draft despatch to the Prime Minister re aircraft
- (2) draft of reply to Mr. Curtin with paragraph added as indicated by the President - today

Remain cheerful!

King

1. I have been giving a great deal of thought to the allocation of combat aircraft manufactured here.

2. It is our considered conviction that all planes maintained in a reserve status are in fact in an inactive status in regard to the paramount objective of maximum and continuous air impact on the enemy.

3. I am sure you will understand our great desire to make the most effective contribution to our combined war effort in every appropriate theater to the limit of our growing capacity.

4. I am confident that our respective air forces can adapt themselves in essential cooperation with our respective ground and sea forces whenever and wherever the common cause can be advanced.

5. It is evident that under current arrangements we are going to have increasing trained air personnel in excess of combat planes in sight for them. We are therefore anxious that every appropriate American-made aircraft be manned and fought by our own crews. Existing schedules of aircraft allocation do not permit us to do this.

6. Not only are present conditions different from those existing at the time of the lend-lease arrangements of last year but they are different from those arrived at in the so-called Arnold Portal agreement of the days immediately following our entry into the war. One example of this difference of situation is the current position of Australia and New Zealand now and as of five months ago.

7. My thought is that the combined Chiefs of Staff, with your approval and mine, would determine the ~~number and type~~ of aircraft to be maintained in the respective theaters of war. I repeat our firm belief that the maximum number of planes possible should be maintained in combat and the minimum number held in reserve and in operational training units.

8. I ^{propose} suggest that Arnold and Towers go to London at once ^{with} to meet with Portal and the appropriate air officer of the Admiralty to discuss the very important details implied in the broad policy expressed in this message. They are now in my judgment free from the objections we both entertained and are entirely compatible with our Atlantic Charter. The treaty was signed yesterday afternoon with great cordiality on both sides.

Molotov is a statesman and has a freedom of action very different from what you and I saw with Litvinov. I am very sure you will be able to reach good understandings with him. Please let me know your impressions.

So far all has gone well with the Northern Convoy but the dangers on the next 2 days must necessarily be serious.

I had an opening talk with Arnold and Towers and both are coming to me for the weekend. I am arranging for them to meet all our air chiefs and they will go into every detail together. I have hope that a good arrangement will be possible. The 2 principles seem to be (A) optimum impact on the enemy and (B) maximum American contribution thereto.

Mountbatten and Lyttelton will come together but former's visit must be short on account of our common work with which he is charged.

I am fully aware of your preoccupations in the Pacific at the present time and if you considered it necessary to withdraw Washington at once we should quite understand. It is however most important to complete our concentration in the Indian Ocean of Warspite, Valiant, Nelson and Rodney by the middle of July. This can be done if we can retain Washington until King George V finishes refitting at the end of June.

The introduction of convoys between Key West and Hampton roads has evidently had the good effect we all expected, but the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico are still very sore spots. King and Pound have been in communication about this and I hope it may be found possible, even by running risks elsewhere, to provide sufficient escort craft to deal with these areas.

I must express my gratitude for your allocation of 70 tankers to build up United Kingdom stocks of oil. Without this help our stocks would have fallen to a dangerous level by the end of the year. This action is the more generous considering recent heavy American tanker losses and the sacrifices involved in re-our common effort and, consequently, that we must be and so increase the number of planes that are standing by as combat ready for fighting status. Other theaters will have greater number that are in combat ready for fighting status. The参戰機數量將會大大增加，並使空軍在各個戰場上發揮更大的作用。

1. I have been giving a great deal of thought to the allocation of combat aircraft manufactured here.
2. It is our considered conviction that all planes maintained in a reserve status are in fact in an inactive status in regard to the paramount objective of maximum and continuous air impact on the enemy.
3. I am sure you will understand our great desire to make the most effective contribution to our combined war effort in every appropriate theater to the limit of our growing capacity.
4. I am confident that our respective air forces can adapt themselves in essential cooperation with our respective ground and sea forces whenever and wherever the common cause can be advanced.
5. It is evident that under current arrangements we are going to have increasing trained air personnel in excess of combat planes in sight for them. We are therefore anxious that every appropriate American-made aircraft be manned and fought by our own crews. Existing schedules of aircraft allocation do not permit us to do this.
6. Not only are present conditions different from those existing at the time of the lend-lease arrangements of last year but they are different from those arrived at in the so-called Arnold Portal agreement of the days immediately following our entry into the war. One example of this difference of situation is the current position of Australia and New Zealand now and as of five months ago.
7. My thought is that the combined Chiefs of Staff, with your approval and mine, would determine the number and type of aircraft to be maintained in the respective theaters of war. I repeat our firm belief that the maximum number of planes possible should be maintained in combat and the minimum number held in reserve and in operational training units.
8. I suggest that Arnold and Towers go to London at once to meet with Portal and the appropriate air officer of the Admiralty to discuss the very important details implied in the broad policy expressed in this message.

PLANNED BUT ON THE OTHER HAND IT DOES NOT MEAN THAT THERE WILL BE NEVER COMBAT AIRCRAFT IN ANY THEATER OF THE WAR. IT MERELY MEANS THAT MORE OF THEM WILL BE FOUGHT BY OUR OWN PERSONNEL.

THERE ARE, OF COURSE, CERTAIN LIMITATIONS TO THIS PROPOSAL, SUCH AS YOUR REQUIREMENTS FOR OUR PRODUCTION OF MARTIN LIGHT BOMBERS AND PARTICULARLY FOR PLANES TO YOUR AIR FORCE IN THE MIDDLE EAST, PENDING SUCH TIME AS A DECISION IS REACHED AS TO WHETHER OUR OWN AIR FORCE WILL JOIN WITH YOU IN THAT THEATER. IN ANY COMBAT THEATER WHERE IT SEEMS UNWISE FOR OUR OWN PERSONNEL TO OPERATE, THEN, OF COURSE, AMERICAN-BUILT AIRPLANES WILL BE SENT AS DETERMINED BY THE STRATEGIC NECESSITIES.

MY THOUGHT IS THAT THE COMBINED CHIEFS OF STAFF, WITH YOUR APPROVAL AND MINE, WOULD DETERMINE THE NUMBER AND TYPE OF AIRCRAFT TO BE MAINTAINED IN THE RESPECTIVE THEATERS OF WAR. I BELIEVE THAT THE MAXIMUM NUMBER OF PLANES POSSIBLE SHOULD BE MAINTAINED IN COMBAT AND THE MINIMUM NUMBER HELD IN RESERVE AND IN OPERATIONAL TRAINING UNITS.

difficulties of 1942 when he arrives. I have also him about this to discuss on his return here. We did not go deeply into it in any way. Personally, I set great importance upon it if a good plan can be made.

Three. So far our northern convoy is fighting its way through having lost five ships, sunk or turned back, out of 35. Tomorrow, 28th, we ought to be getting under the Russian air umbrella if any has been provided. Otherwise, two more days of this.

Four. Auchinleck's news tonight indicates that the battle in Libya has begun. This may be the biggest encounter we have ever fought. General Smuts who has visited the whole front expresses high confidence in the result. I am sure all American hearts will be with us. The issue seems to depend on the armoured fighting on the desert flank. Personally I welcome the trial of strength and am glad if it has come about by Rommel's attack.

Five. We must never let Gymnast pass from our minds. All other preparations would help if need be towards that.

DRAFT

May 18, 1942

Subject: Principles which should cover the reallocation of combat planes produced in the United States.

1. The strength and disposition of combat units of the Allied Air Forces to meet the strategic requirements will be as determined by the Combined Chiefs of Staff.
2. The United States will build up and maintain Air Forces of the size necessary to meet our war and post-war requirements.
3. In general combat planes produced in the United States will be flown by personnel of our own armed forces. Certain exceptions are listed hereafter.
4. Types, non-standard for the United States Army or Navy being produced for other Allied Nations will be continued in production and the supply of these types will be maintained as long as necessary to maintain the combined allied aerial strength.
5. Reallocations made will insure that the Air Forces in the various theatres will not be reduced below the Combined Chiefs of Staff requirements.
6. In general, United States produced airplanes will not be supplied to other Nations as long as United States pilots or combat crews are on the ground awaiting planes.
7. The maximum possible number of planes will be maintained in combat against our enemies. Those in transit, held in reserve or used in operational training units, will be held to a minimum.
8. In theatres where facilities and arrangements have been made for maintaining and repairing our planes or where our planes are now used by combat units, the United States will continue to supply planes or may replace and/or supplement units of our allies whichever means appears to be most effective in maintaining the maximum aerial striking force.

[REDACTED]

PRINCIPLES TO COVER THE REALLOCATION OF AMERICAN COMBAT AIRPLANES.

1. The strategic disposition of units in combat of the allied Air Force will be determined by the Combined Chiefs of Staff.
 - a. The entire allied air effort is necessary to defeat the Axis.
 - b. The American component of the allied air effort shall consist of American Forces manned, equipped and operated by Americans.
3. The strength of the American and British components of the Allied Air Forces will be, in general, proportionate to the resources of the two nations.
 - a. Each nation will determine the strength of its own component based on its own resources.
 - b. Where American facilities to train or to equip combat units exceed American requirements, excess facilities may be made available to the Allies.
4. All details as to operations or reserve and supply will be designed to provide Air Forces of the size required for the eventual defeat of the Axis. Interim combat requirements will be permitted to delay in the development of the eventual Air Force only to the extent necessary to stave off defeat.
5. In order to build an American Air Force it is necessary, in general, that all combat airplanes manufactured in the United States be flown by personnel from the American Armed Forces except when types non-standard for the United States Army or Navy are produced for other allied nations, such production will be continued, provided.
 - a. That such non-standard airplanes are not required to equip trained U. S. combat crews which are on the ground awaiting planes.
 - b. That such manufacturing capacity is not required for the production of standard American types.
6. The maximum number of planes will be maintained in combat.
7. The minimum number of combat aircraft will be held in reserve and in operational training units.
8. The United States agrees to undertake the repair and technical supply of all American aircraft operated in active theaters.

Former Naval Person to President number 92 following is report referred to in my number 91 begins "May 22 11 AM Operations on the Continent 1942-43.

Mr. Churchill welcoming Molotov and his advisers, said that he understood that Molotov was anxious to place before the British Government the views held by the Soviet Government on the subject of an invasion of the Continent.

Molotov said that he had been charged by the Soviet Government to come to London to discuss the question of the establishment of a "Second Front."

This was no new problem. It had first been raised nearly ten months ago and now, more recently, the impetus had come from President Roosevelt, who had suggested to Mr Stalin that he (Molotov) should go to the United States to discuss this question. Although, therefore, the initiative for the present enquiry had come from the United States, the Soviet Government had thought it right that he should proceed to the United States via London, since it was upon Great Britain that the main task for organizing the Second Front would initially fall.

Speaking generally, Molotov said that the Soviet Government considered this to be a most urgent and pressing problem, in which both Great Britain and Russia were vitally concerned. It was indeed a matter for discussion with complete frankness, as becoming conversations between allies. On the Russian front, operations of the greatest intensity and importance were now impending and the weeks and months which lay immediately ahead were fraught with the most serious consequences to the Soviet Union and their allies. During last winter, the Soviet army had got the batter of Hitler's army, and had immediately set about preparing for the campaign of 1942. Nevertheless, the Soviet Government contemplated a fierce and bitter struggle in which the Germans would not yield easily or quickly. In this battle, the main weight would fall upon the Soviet army. They were proud of this honor. On both sides, immense forces, backed by mighty armaments, were ranged against each other. The material aid rendered by Great Britain and the United States was highly prized and appreciated by the Soviet Government. Nevertheless, the most urgent issues were involved in the establishment of a "Second Front".

The object of his (Molotov's) visit was to learn how the British Government viewed the prospects of drawing off some of the weight from Russia, where it seemed that, at the present time, the balance of advantage in armed strength lay with the Germans. It should be remembered that Hitler could call upon vast resources seized from the subjugated and enslaved peoples scattered over a large part of Europe.

In concrete terms, the proposal he had to make was that Russia's allies, and Great Britain in the first place, should aim at containing forty enemy divisions in western Europe. If this could be done, the doom of Hitler was sealed, if not in 1942, at any rate very soon afterwards.

Mr Churchill said that, in all previous wars, control of the sea had given the power possessing it the great advantage of being able to land, at will, on the enemy's coast, since it was impossible for the enemy to be prepared at every point to meet seaborne invasion. The advent of air power had altered the whole situation. For example, in France and the low country the enemy could move his air forces in a few hours to threatened points anywhere along the coast; and bitter experience had shown that landing, in the teeth of enemy air opposition, was not a sound military proposition. The inescapable consequence was that large portions of the Continental coastline were denied to us as places for disembarkation. We were forced, therefore, to study our chances at those parts of the coast where our superior fighter force would give us control in the air. Our choice was, in fact, narrowed down to the Pas de Calais, the Cherbourg "Tipe" and part of the Brest area. The problem of landing a force this year in one or more of these areas was being studied, and preparations were being made, with the utmost energy. Our plans were being based on the assumption that the landing of successive waves of assault troops would bring about air battles which, if continued over a week or ten days, would lead to the virtual destruction of the enemy's air power on the continent. Once this was achieved and the air opposition removed, landings at other points on the coast could be effected under cover of our superior sea power. The crucial point in making our plans and preparations was the availability of the special landing craft required for effecting the initial landing on the very heavily defended enemy coastline. Unfortunately, our resources in this special type of craft were, for the time being, strictly limited. As far back as last August, at the Atlantic meeting, he (Mr Churchill) had impressed upon President Roosevelt the urgent need for the United States to build as large a number of tank landing and other assault craft as possible. Later, in January of this year, the President had agreed that the United States should make an even larger effort to construct these craft. We, for our part, for more than a year, had been turning out as large a number of assault craft as our need for constructing ships for the Navy and mercantile marine, which had suffered previous losses, permitter

In April, President Roosevelt had sent Mr Hopkins and General Marshall to London with the proposal that the United States should join with Great Britain, at the earliest date, in taking the greatest possible weight off Russia. We had immediately agreed to this proposal, and joint studies were proceeding apace. It could not be expected, however, that United States forces would be available till very late in 1942, or that the landing craft we so urgently required would be available in large numbers this year. By first August we should have only 383 landing: By first Sept 566. In 1943, very much larger numbers would be available, and we could descend on the enemy coast at five or six points, anywhere between the North Cape and Bayonne. It was, however, the earnest resolve of the British Government to see what could be done this year to give the much needed support to the valiant Russian armies, who were confronting so large a part of Germany's military might, and had already inflicted such deep wounds upon it.

Two points should, however, be borne in mind. First, with the best will and endeavor, it was unlikely that any move we could make in 1942, even if it were successful, would draw off large numbers of enemy land forces from the Eastern front. In the air, however, the position was different; in the various theaters of war we were already containing about one half of the fighter and one third of the German bomber strength. If our plan for forcing air battles over the continent proved successful, the Germans might be faced with the choice either of seeing the whole of their fighter air force in the west destroyed, or of making withdrawals from their air strength in the east.

The second point related to Molotov's proposition that our aim should be to draw off (including those now in the west) not less than forty German divisions from Russia. It should be noted that, at the present time, we had confronting us in Libya eleven Axis divisions, of which three were German, the equivalent of eight German divisions in Norway, and 25 German divisions in France and the Low Countries. These totalled 44 divisions.

But we were not satisfied with that, and if any further effort could be made or plan devised, provided it was sound and sensible, for drawing the weight off Russia this year, we should not hesitate to put it into effect. Clearly, it would not further either the Russian cause or that of the Allies as a whole if, for the sake of action at any price, we embarked on some operation which ended in disaster and gave the enemy an opportunity for glorification at our discomfiture. Thus to sum up, we and the United States would do everything that was physically possible to meet the wishes of the Russian Government and nation in this matter.

M. Molotov enquired whether the views expressed by Mr. Churchill were shared by the United States Government on the subject of the second front.

Mr. Churchill said that the United States Government shared to the full our resolve to operate on the continent with the largest possible forces at the earliest possible moment. This was their ardent desire, and in 1943 our joint plans contemplated the landing of a force of up to one and a half million United States-British troops on the continent.

The United States were anxious to take their share in any operations carried out this year, but their contribution in the near future would not be on any considerable scale. As an earnest of their intent, we had with us now in London a number of American officers who were collaborating closely with our staffs in the preparation of plans; and more were on their way.

M. Molotov then asked whether it was possible and appropriate to make an estimate of the percentage of British troops, including those on all fronts, employed on active operations against the enemy, at any given date during the last three months.

Mr. Churchill said that the proportion of British troops on all fronts actually at grips with the enemy was naturally small. He went on to explain in general terms the dispositions of our forces; up to 53,000 men a month were leaving our shores for the middle and Far East theaters.

M. Molotov said that he had no doubt that Great Britain genuinely wished for the success of the Soviet Army against the Germans this summer. What, in the view of the British Government, were the prospects of Soviet success? Whatever their views might be he would be glad to have a frank expression of opinion - good or bad.

Mr. Churchill said that, without detailed knowledge of the resources and reserves on both sides, it was difficult to form a firm judgment on this question. Last year the military experts, including those of Germany, had thought that the Soviet Army might be borne down and overcome. They had proved quite wrong. In the event the Soviet forces had defeated Hitler and nearly brought his Army to disaster. Consequently Russia's allies felt great confidence in the strength and ability of the Soviet Army.

The intelligence available to the British Government did not indicate the massing of vast German forces at any particular point on the eastern front. Moreover, the full scale offensive heralded for May now seemed unlikely to take place before June. In any event, it did not seem that Hitler's attack this year could be as strong or so menacing as that of 1941. In making this statement he (Mr. Churchill) did not wish it to be inferred that we were asking our guests for information which they might be reluctant to disclose.

M. Molotov, in reply, agreed that nobody could be expected to make accurate prophecies about the future.

The great Russian country and people believed in their own strength, but they also believed in facing up to the worst possibilities. Supposing the Soviet Army failed to hold out against the maximum effort which Hitler would undoubtedly exert during 1942, how would the British Government view the position in which they would be placed.

Mr. Churchill said that if the Russians were defeated or the Soviet military power was seriously reduced by the German onslaught, Hitler would, in all probability, move as many troops and air forces as possible back to the west, with the object of invading Great Britain. He might also strike down through Baku to the Caucasus and Persia. This would expose us to the gravest dangers and we should by no means feel satisfied that we had sufficient forces to ward off the latter thrust. Therefore, our fortunes were bound up with the resistance of the Soviet Army. Nevertheless, if contrary to expectation, they were defeated, and the worst came to the worst, we should fight on, and with the help of the United States, hope to build up overwhelming air superiority, which, in the course of the next eighteen months or two years would enable us to put down a devastating weight of air attack on the German cities and industries. We should, moreover, maintain the blockade and make landings on the continent against an increasingly enfeebled opposition. Ultimately, the power of Great Britain and the United States would prevail. It should not be overlooked that after the fall of France Great Britain had stood alone for a whole year with but a handful of ill equipped troops between her and Hitler's victorious and numerous divisions.

But what a tragedy for mankind would be this prolongation of the war, and how earnest was the hope for Russian victory and how ardent the desire that we should take our share in conquering the evil foe. He, Mr. Churchill, wished M. Molotov to realise that it was the dearest wish of the British nation and Army to come to grips with the enemy at the earliest moment and so to aid the gallant fight of the Russian Army and people.

In conclusion, Mr. Churchill asked M. Molotov to bear in mind the difficulty of oversea invasions. After France fell out of the war, we in Great Britain were almost naked, a few ill equipped divisions, less than 100 tanks and less than 200 field guns. And yet Hitler had not attempted an invasion, by reason of the fact that he could not get command of the air. The same sort of difficulties confronted us at the present time. He suggested that General Isayev and Admiral Kharlamov should meet Lt. General Nyo and Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten that afternoon, in order that they might be told the exact position as regards the special landing craft necessary for overseas operations.

M. Molotov agreed. He thanked Mr. Churchill for what he had said. He would carefully report to his Government. In conclusion, he would like to say that the Russian people also believed in their strength and in the strength of their Allies.

WAR DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF STAFF
WASHINGTON

May 16, 1942

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT:

Subject: Aircraft situation in the United Nations.

1. The Army Air Forces cannot be equipped, trained and maintained during the remainder of 1942, nor can air forces be provided for both the initiation of an offensive in Europe and a strategic defensive in the Pacific, under the aircraft allocations provided by the Arnold-Portal Agreement. An immediate reallocation is necessary.

2. The situation under which the Arnold-Portal agreement was reached has greatly altered. The strategical situation and the United States commitments in the Pacific Theatre have not only changed materially, but until very recently the War Department did not have detailed information on British production, allocations and reserves. Furthermore, we were unaware of the British basis of calculation on reserves and attrition, which we now learn exceed our basis for calculating such requirements by an average of approximately 100 per cent.

3. The conception of the United States as the Arsenal of the Democracies had two purposes:

a. The initial provision of essential materials of war for the nations opposing the Axis.

b. The creation of a war potential which, if the United States entered the war, could and would be retained for the creation of necessary American armed forces. The United States is now at war. It requires the aircraft production that is has created. (b/w)

4. In order to correct the situation outlined above, it is recommended that the present schedule of deliveries from United States production for all types of combat airplanes to Great Britain, be amended as follows:

Army Types

June 1942 - 50% of each type, except Martin 187 (light bombers), be reallocated to the United States.

July 1942 - 75% of each type, except Martin 187 (light bombers), be reallocated to the United States.

DECLASSIFIED

By Authority of ADMR SEC

ARMY BY TAG PER 720314

By R.W.Pks Date MAY 1 1972

August 1942 - thereafter 100% of each type, be reallocated to the United States; provided further:

That the entire United States production of Martin 187 (light bombers), remain allocated to Great Britain, and

That the eleven American equipped pursuit squadrons in the Middle East on April 1, 1942 be furnished 20% monthly attrition replacements on initial equipment.

That the United States fulfill its present aircraft commitments to Russia (protocol to June 30, 1942; deliveries to be completed about August 15); that thereafter the allotments to Russia will be determined by the rate of attrition being suffered in the British-American air offensive over the European Continent, provided that a monthly average minimum of 50 United States pursuit, 50 light and 12 medium bombers will be guaranteed by the United States. It will also be understood that the British allocation to Russia will be maintained in general accordance with the foregoing policy, and that the United States will make no objection to the allocation by Russia of United States planes to Great Britain on a trade basis, to effect a better standardization of types or to facilitate transfers.

That both Great Britain and the United States be responsible for the equipment and replacements for their own combat units, except in the Pacific theatre where the United States agrees to maintain and repair existing British Commonwealth units now equipped with American aircraft, and except in the Middle East as provided above.

That the allocation of aircraft to other nations be kept to the absolute minimum in order to concentrate adequate forces in the decisive theatres.

Navy Types

(The following is included with the concurrence of Admiral King.)

June through December 31, 1942 - 33 % of all flying boats be reallocated to the United States.

June through December 31, 1942 - 100% of all torpedo bombers be reallocated to the United States.

5. This recommended reallocation will:

Permit by January 1, 1943, the British program to be met to the extent of 81% of total aircraft requirements, and the United States program by 54% (The Target programs of both nations up to January 1, 1943 are approximately the same).

DECLASSIFIED

By Authority of ORDER SEC

ARMY BY TAG PER 7203L4

By RH Date MAY 1 1972

Permit the building of essential United States Air Forces and would still permit a thirty-four per cent expansion for the Royal Air Force by January 1, 1943.

Permit increased efficiency and simplicity, since each Nation will utilize its own aircraft.

Permit the great combat crew resources and training capabilities of the United States to be fully employed.

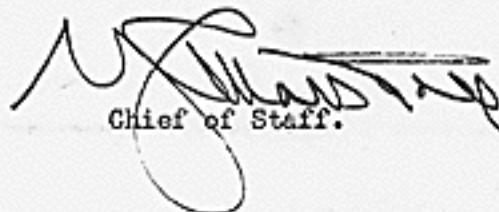

Enable American Air Forces to meet their combat and training requirements.

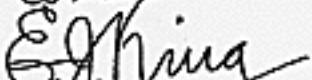

Result in the early provision of the required combined offensive air forces in the vital theater.

Enable Great Britain to maintain present United States equipped units in the Middle East with 150% reserve, and provide attrition replacements.

Enable a larger number of combat units to be employed offensively. The American policy of maintaining more moderate reserves will result in submitting the bulk of American aircraft to combat units.

I recommend that this subject be discussed with you by the Joint Chiefs of Staff - on Monday, May 18th, if practicable.

Chief of Staff.

I AM INCLINED TO FAVOR THE IDEA OF INVITING GENERAL SMUTS TO COME TO WASHINGTON TO SEE ME AND STAY FOR A FEW DAYS, MORE IN A PERSONAL THAN IN A FORMAL CAPACITY. I HAVE KNOWN HIM EVER SINCE 1918 AND CORRESPOND WITH HIM OCCASIONALLY. ALSO I THINK IT MAY BE OF HELP TO HIM IN HIS HOME PROBLEMS TO GET A PICTURE OF THE GENERAL SITUATION FROM A FELLOW DUTCHMAN LIKE ME. I WOULD NOT SET ANY ESPECIAL DATE BUT MERELY SUGGEST SOME TIME THIS SUMMER. PLEASE LET ME KNOW WHAT YOU THINK.

I ALSO HAVE AN IDEA THAT IF I WERE TO INVITE OUR FRIEND JOHN CURTIN TO COME HERE FOR A VERY SHORT VISIT, BUT AT A DIFFERENT TIME FROM SMUTS' VISIT, IT MIGHT DO MUCH GOOD IN A WHOLLY DIFFERENT WAY. FROM ALL I HEAR HE IS A THOROUGHLY HONEST AND SINCERE PERSON BUT HAS HAD LITTLE OPPORTUNITY TO APPRECIATE THE WORLD SITUATION OUTSIDE OF HIS OWN SPHERE. THERE ARE ALSO MATTERS REGARDING COMMAND AND OPERATIONAL PROBLEMS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC IN WHICH I SHOULD LIKE TO TRY MY HAND AT INDOCTRINATION. (See #151)

I WISH YOU WOULD LET ME HAVE YOUR PERSONAL THOUGHT ON THIS MATTER ALSO.

General Smuts may be coming here in the near future and a good opportunity would arise then. Shall I mention your idea to him as an additional incentive? We have been good friends for nearly forty years and I regard him as one of the greatest living men. As to Curtin, a visit could do nothing but good. I have got on very well with Evatt.

1. I am thrilled at the thought of the books and shall always cherish them.

2. I have sent the invitations to Smuts and Curtin, the latter not expected until after he has seen Evatt.

3. Molotov's visit is, I think, a real success because we have got on a personal footing of candor and as good friendship as can be acquired through an interpreter. His departure will be delayed two or three days more.

4. He has made very clear his real anxiety as to the next four or five months, and I think this is sincere and not put forward to force our hand. I have a very strong feeling that the Russian position is precarious and may grow steadily worse during the coming weeks.

5. Therefore, I am more than ever anxious that Bolero proceed to definite action beginning in 1942. We all realize that because of weather conditions the operation cannot be delayed until the end of the year.

6. After talking with our Staff, I believe German Air Forces cannot be defeated or indeed brought to battle to an extent which will bring them off the Russian front until we have made a landing. I have great confidence in the ability of our joint airforces to gain complete control of the channel and enough of the land for appropriate bridge heads to be covered. This will result in either:

(a) Pulling German Air Forces away from the Russian front, with effort to destroy it on our part, or

(b) If German Air Force fails to come out, the ground troop operation can be increased with objective of establishing permanent positions.

7. United Staffs are now working on proposal to increase shipping for use in Bolero by cutting out a large portion of materials for Russia, other than munitions which can be used in battle this year. This ought to not to diminish supplies of munitions like planes, tanks, guns, ammunition, which Russians could use in combat this Summer. I think we can cut further on Murmansk-Archipel convoys and send more ready to use munitions via Basra. This should make your Home Fleet task easier, particularly destroyers.

8. I will telegraph you when Molotov leaves, and I am especially anxious that he carry back some real results of his Mission and that he will give a favorable account to Stalin. I am inclined to think that at present all the Russians are a bit down in the mouth.

But the important thing is that we may be and probably are faced with real trouble on the Russian front and must make our plans to meet it.

Like you I am anxious about Russia and also China in the next few months. It is often easier to see dangers gathering than to have the power to ward them off, and very often they don't happen.

Mountbatten will explain to you some of the practical difficulties as we see them here of a medium scale operation this year. We are still working at it and trying to make plans to overcome them. All preparations should go forward with the utmost speed, and I am having your new convoy proposals examined by the Chiefs of Staff and the Admiralty.

I had some very pleasant talks with Arnold, though
I am still much troubled on the subject.

I hope you were pleased with our mass air attack on Cologne. There is plenty more to come, and I look forward eagerly to the arrival of your bombing groups.

The battle in Libya goes well, and I expect considerable results or even possibly a complete decision.
